HAS NO FAITH IN THE THIRD PARTY MOVE

The New Immigration Law-The Wilmington Collector of Customs. The Vesuvius In Norfolk-Capital Notes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 2.-[Special.]-Representative Edmunds, of Virginia, was lounging around the lobby of the Metropolitan Hotel, looking for somebody to talk with concerning crops. This sort of material was conspicuous by its absence and Edmunds consented to say a few words in a political vein.

When asked what he thought of the third party movement, Mr. Edmunds remarked that he had no faith in this movement in his district. He claimed that he belonged to the Farmers' Alliance and in consequence was a

Escorted by military and civic organizations the Press dential party was taken along the principal streets to the State capitol, where the school children fairly gave the President a hearty greeting and scattered flowers before his carrange in the same lavish manner that characterised similar demonstrations in other

At 10 o'clock the special train left for Cakland amid the cheers of a crowd that had assembled at the station. Many houses in the city were decorated in honor of the President's visit. Two floral arches at the capitol were particularly noticeable. Before the party left the President and Mrs. Harrison were presented with a representation of the seal of the city of Sacrmento, engraved on a gold plate.

Learwille, Pa., May 2.—The city is filled with indignant men and women and excitement runs high against the members of the late firm of Dalamater & Co., bankers. The members of the committee representing the unsecured ereditors have worked hard for the past three months, but their labor appears to have been in vain, and it's plainly evident the firm has never any intention of paying creditors.

Mr. Delemater makes a frank acknowledgement that he is unable to do anything. Mr. Charles Fahr, a prominent merchant and a mamber of the committee, said this afternoon; "We can get no further; all hope is lost."

INVADED BY CATERPILLARS. A Moving Mass of Them Ground into Fertilizer by a Railway Engine.

Central people have been having a peculiar experience with caterpillars for four or five days past. Just east of Lamberton is what is known as the "Big Swamp," and the railroad goes through it on a trestle, broken here and there in the more solid portions of the swamp by solid embankments of the earth. Last Tuesday an army of caterpillars began moving out of the swamp, and when they reached the streams over which the trestles carry the trains they massed on the railroad and pro-ceeded to cross on the trestles. The rails and ties were covered inches deep with the moving mass, and the first train that encountered them was brought to a dead standstill, the driving wheels of the locomotive slipping around as if the rails had been thoroughly oiled. The engineer exhausted the contents of his sand box before he got through the swamp and reached a clear stretch of track. It was thought that this trip would be the end of thought that this trip would be the end of the caterpillar trouble, but the very next day a train encountered another army of caterpil-lars crossing the trestle and had the same difficulty. The Charlotte-bound passenger difficulty. The Charlotte-bound passenger train yesterday had a similar experience, and a passenger says the sight was truly wonderful. The track and cross-ties of the track were actually obscured from the sight by the caterpillars, and the ground and swamps on each side of the track were littered with the mashed fragments of millions of the insects from the wheels of the preceding trains, and from this mass an unendurable stench arose. Where the caterpillars came from is not

The farmers on this side of the swamp express no uneasiness for the safety of their crops, so long as the advancing army persists in using the trestle as its means of getting across the streams for none of them have gotten more than half way across before a train would come along and convert them into

I was tired after walking along the docks all day in search of work, and fell asieep as soon as I got to bed. I got up at 6 o'clock and walked out without meeting anybody. I begged the money for my lodgings. I was not drunk; I did not run away. I was looking for work when they arrested me."

THE BLOOD ON HIS CLOTHES ..

When asked to account for the blood on his clothes he wore on the night of the murder, he said the blood on his clothes came from a man with whom he had a quarrel a short time before. "They are old stains and did not amount to anything."

Regarding the blood on his underwear he said the woman with whom he went to the hotel on the night before the murder was indisposed, and he left her shortly after they went to the room. Here he became excited and wildly declared that he never killed the woman. "I never killed any woman, and I never met the murdered woman in my life,"

"Did you ever bite Many Ann Lopez?"
He would not answer, and claimed that he did not know the woman by that name. THAT FATAL ENIFE.

He acknowledged having been locked up in the Queens county jail on Long Island for thirty days. # IRATE CATHOLIC EDITORS.

They Fall Out With Each Other and Use Language Not in the Holy Book.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2.—The quarrel between the two Roman Catholic dioceses of Rochester and Ruffalo is no new one, though it has not reached an open outbreak before. There has been friction as far back as 1882. There has been friction as far back as 18-2. The differences between the two dioceses were further embittered by Bishop Mc-Quaides treatment of Rev. Father Lambert, who was formerly attached to the Buffalo diocese, and held in high esteem by the bishop of Buffalo.

A few weeks ago a controversy over a question of the doctrine arcse between the Rochester Catholic Learnal and the R. Galo Catholic ter Catholic Journal and the Buffalo Catholic Union. The former paper is not the organ the diocese and claims to be independent of the Bishop while having his friendship and respect. The Catholic Union is the acknow-ledged organ of the Buffalo diocese. The Journal accused the Union of mistaking doctrine, and the Union replied with doctrine, and the Union replied with a hot shot at the "Tom Thumb boiler weekly and some one behind it—supposed to be the Bishop of Rochester." Angry paragraphs flew back and forth. In an article in the Union the writer said: "If the little Journal only knew what a Jonah it carried in the creature which it permits to hide behind its editorial mask it would long since have thrown him mask, it would long since have thrown him overboard in self-preservation. Malice is the sustenance of his alleged soul, personal puf-fery the breath of his nostrils, and the man or slobbering woman who can furnish a plen-tiful supply of that commodity is the angel

The sting of the article, however, was in its tail, as follows: "The masked assassin should know by this time how utterly we despise him and all his spider ways. He says we are 'yulgar.' # DISHOP M'QUAIDE'S PASTORAL.

ROCHESTER, N. The Bishop avers that the paper referred to labors to foment insubordination among priests and people, it keep alive unchristian feelings between the diocecus; it disturbs the peace of this one it is a constantly recurring source of scandal to many running into sin

The object was to influence the men at work to rejoin the strikers. Threats were made and there were very exciting scenes. A number of guards were placed on duty. Many of the strikers gathered clubs, but their leaders quickly disarmed them. No serious outbreak had occurred up to noon, but the crowd is a determined one and may yet cause trouble. A number of the strikers were heard to say: "We ought to chase the black-legs from the yard." An animated argument between Jack Paul, the strike leader at McClure's, and Mine Boss Glenn last night culminated in a fight, in which Paul was considerably cut. Superintendent White drew a revolver on a striker named Stevenson and struck him. The strikers have warrants out for the arrest of both the officials.

LONDON, May 2 .- A Paris dispatch says that M. Constans has given instructions for the vigorous prosecution of the Lyons rioters. The Government is accumulating evidence which leaves no doubt that the disturbances were part of a concealed plan to cause a revolution in France. The leaders of the agitation in Paris, Lyons and Clichy were recognized as men who taken an active share in exciting the populace at the time of the Boulanger affair, and the authorities are confident that the motives which actuated that conspiracy were at the bottom of the May-Day dis-

The Socialists and Anarchists seized the opportunity to make the workingmen think they were oppressed, and this led to the outbreak, which was rather spontaneous than the result of organized action. The ceremony was of a private character, but it is known that Her Royal Highness was not made to take a plunge in the baptismal waters, but was only anointed with holy oil after the Russian fashion. The Duchess and her husband are on the best of terms, and she has acknowledged that the change is a matter of policy, but there is no doubt that it is entirely voluntary.

On the German Exhibition in London which opened yesterday, the principal buildings of Berlin, of Pottsdam, Nuremberg are depicted on a larger scale than they have ever been seen in England, and an exquisite view is presented of Munich. The chief at tractions of western and central gardens in the exhibition are the Schleswig-Holstein farm-house and the gallery of the German Emperors.

Count Fade's failure to control a majority was predicted from the first, and this is the third Reischrath under his premiership. He does not hold office at the will of Parliament, but of the Emperor, who will interpose his personal authority should the dead-lock be prolonged.

Highness is Ataman. FUTURE OF SOUTH AFRICA.

A new interest has been imparted to the question of the future destiny of South Africa by the announcement of an intended "trek" to the North on the part of large numbers of subjects of Transvaal, Free State, and Cape governments. According to the published programme, a number of farmers—there will be as many as 5,000—will assemble on the southern bank of the Limpopo, between the 15th and 3ist of May, will cross the river on 15th and 3ist of May, will cross the river on the 1st of June and proclaim the "Republic of the North" on the following day. The leaders of "trek" include men from the Transvaal the Free State, and Cape Colony.

All steps taken have been by the advice and approval of Afrikander Bund, which has just held its annual conference at kimberley.
There seems reason to believe that one of the objects in view is the extinction of the claims of the chartered company and the replacement of the company by a genuine claims of the chartered company and the re-placement of the company by a genuine Sruth African company free from the con-trol of the British Government. The idea has been gathered in England that as the Afrikan-der Bund supports the Right Hon. Cecil Rhedes in his position as Cape Fremier it must also support him as director of destinies of the chartered company. This may turn

An influential journal published in Cape An inniential journal published in Capa-Town and representing the views of a moder-ate portion of the Butch party, referring to the seizure of the steamer Countess of Carnar-von, has remarked that the news of the seizure von, has remarked that the news of the seizure was only lacking in one respect to make it entirely acceptable—that it did not include a report that the captain of the vessel had been killed by a shot from a Portuguese cannon. The Patriot, a journal which represents the more extreme views of the Bund party, was even more emphatic in the same sense.

The strength of the movement may be gathered from the opeuness with which its plans are disclosed. There is no concealment of any kind. The Republic of the North will be founded on the constitutional law of the South African Republic, and will attract men of high character and ability from all parts of South Africa. As a South African movement it has to be reckoned with by the British Government, and will exercise a very important influence upon the future of the country.

MS. PARNELL BETICENT.

Mr. Parnell, who was at one time particularly frank as to his views and plans, has of late become extremely reticent, even in dealing with his friends. He will give no information, either as to his future action on the Irish Land bill, or as to the compaign in Ireland. The change in his demeanor is so marked that it has caused an impression that he is contemplating some fresh surprise. It is said that Mr. Parnell will only continue in anything like constant attendance in Parliament until one or two of the more important amendments to or two of the more important amendments to the Land bill have been disposed of, and will then leave the measure to his friends in the House and personally recommence his agita-tion in Ireland, possibly to contest Cork against Mr. Maurice Healy.

The Decision Reversed. By Cable to The Times.1

(By Cable to The Times.)

London, May 2.—In the case against the French Cable Company, which has been pending for several years, and in which the contention has been that the company could not under its agreement withdraw from the pool of Atlantic cable companies, an important decision was rendered to-day. The claim of the French company has been that the letter of the Minister of December 30, 1886, raising the point of its right under its concession to enter the pool, was a temporary order for it to withdraw from the pool, and it was so decided by the Council of the Prefecture in March, 1889. This decision was appalled to the Council of State, which now reverses it.

Sr. John's, Newfoundland, May 2.—In the Legislature yesterday Colonial-Secretary Bond read a cable message from Lord Knutsford addressed to Governor O'Brien, formally notifying the Newfoundland Legislature that unless it passes an act to carry out the treaties between Great Britain and France the bill now before the House of Lords will become a law.

A Remarkable Will.

(By Dunlop Cable to The Ti-Grasgow, May 2.—A bit of post mortem humor was brought to light to-day when the will of a well-known doctor was registered. The doctor leaves his entire estate to his two sisters, and concludes the document with a clause containing this extraordinary language: "To my wafe, as a recompense for deserting me, leaving me in peace. I expect my said sister Elizabeth to make her a gift of ten shillings to buy handkerchiefs in which she may weep after my decease."

Sr. Louis, Mo., May 2.-A special from Cheyenne, Wyo., says: Thomas Cooper, a well-known Wyoming guide, has just returned from Jackson's Hole, where Robert Ray Hamilton is said to have been drowaed in September last. Cooper was present when the body was found, and says there were a number of suspicious circumstances attending the event calculated to confirm the belief which many people possess that Hamilton is still alive. He says the body was very much decomposed and recognition was hardly possible. When Dr. Green arrived he did not look at the body, and it was buried close

Cooper says that although every man in the party had known Hamilton, not one could identify the body. The apparent indifference of Hamilton's friends, and the unceremonious manner in which the body was buried made an unfavorable impression upon the people living in the vicinity, and many of them believed that the body of some medical college was shipped there and dressed in Hamilton's clothes and dumped in the river, with the circumstantial evidence carefully planned to an apparently reliable story of Hamilton's death. The decomposition of the body found in the river was much beyond what it should have been with but six days' submission, the length of the time that Hamilton was miseing until the body was found.

The body can easily be exhumed and taken East at any time should the friends of Hamilton desire to have a final and conclusive identification.
